To whom it may concern,

As a former resident of Newcastle now living overseas, I'd like to pass on one quick thought in regard to the above mentioned review of Newcastle's current liquor license and lockout laws.

I am 28-years-old and was living in and going out in Newcastle both pre and post the establishment of these laws. I love live music and would love to see more venues promoting local talent, and I love a drink, within reason of course.

But for my two bobs worth, why change what is working? Sure, people whinged about it at the time and the loudest and most passionate will always be the hoteliers and those who work within the industry who just want to make a few more bucks.

Keep things the same, there's nothing wrong with being home in bed by 3am anyway.

Best,
