

Lockout laws - a bungle in the jungle

PB Peter Bartlett [REDACTED]

Reply all | ▾

To: Liquor Law Review; ▾

10:29 AM

Inbox

To whom it may concern,

The Baird government's continuing lockout laws and early bottleshop closing are non-sensical and discriminatory, because good venue operators are penalised along with irresponsible ones, and pay the price (business closure or restriction). Bottleshop opening should be extended, not curtailed, if safety is a priority for the government. Better that people drink at home, away from the public, I would have thought.

Big brother policies will cost Liberals so many votes and it will be too late by the time they realise, but in the meantime innocent victims suffer.

Time to read the will of the people affected by lockout laws, not someone on a pension in Hornsby or Dubbo.

Peter Bartlett

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

[REDACTED]

PS Happy to speak to my submission in depth.