Hey, so I can say that lock out laws have not have the best impact on Sydney. The laws have forced the closure of night clubs and restaurants in the kings cross. The laws turn tourists away from are amazing country. Sydney is a thriving city and it only runs till 1:30 ! Restricting people from entering a club at 1:30 does not solve the problem of violence on the streets on Sydney.

Better education need to be available to the youth throughout school to show the impact on violence. improved policing and more club security should be implemented to tackle the select few people that go into looking for a fight / punch up with other people.

Night club bans should also be put in place.
