I moved to Sydney 4.5 years ago and was blown away by the nightlife, culture and restaurant scene. I loved that city was alive and buzzing at all times and people seemed to be enjoying life. I am now leaving Sydney for greener pastures. The lockout laws have completely changed the dynamics of the city, steering away fun loving people whilst the derelicts remain despite the laws. Australia has a culture problem, not a drinking problem, and certainly not a problem with being out late at night in the city. Hopefully if we make enough noise the backward thinking bureaucrats will change the lockouts laws, if not to save the city, simply to save themselves.
