

Submission to the review of alcohol

MF Marcus Fairfax

  Reply all |

To: Liquor Law Review;

7:55 AM

Inbox

The less people drink to get drunk the fewer serious assaults will occur. Research and historical statistics clearly show that the less people are allowed to drink alcohol, the fewer assaults and unintended self harm and the usual aggressive behaviour will be greatly reduced. Giving in to the alcohol lobby and/or taking half measures in this issue should be seen as a serious abrogation of the government's responsibility in regard to public health and safety.

Regards,

Marcus Fairfax

Police Officer