To whom it may concern;

Please, listen to the people of Sydney, Australia, and the rest of the world. The lock out law is not the correct resolution to the issue of violence. Lives, families, businesses have been irreversibly changed. Hear out what the people want. Yes violence needs to be controlled, but there are much more effective ways including more situational and social crime prevention. Instead you are punishing the innocent, those that created and maintain the beautiful and vibrant culture of Sydney. No longer is Sydney one of the big, must-visit cities. Now it's a desolate, empty shell of what has previously been the most exciting and amazing cities of the world. I hope we can bring back the night to Sydney.
