To whom it may concern,

I urge the government of New South Wales to review the liquor licensing and lockout laws, in Sydney. As an American student studying here for the last few months, I can say that I'm shocked to see a government suppress the culture of its people with such legislation. Not only does it keep people out of work, but it keeps a large part of the rising artistic community underground as well. It keeps artistic venues and performing artists from thriving in a city with so much potential to be a center for artistic excellence. It's disappointing to see that potential stifled in such a vibrant city. Please, Keep Sydney Open.

Thank you,
