To whom it may concern,

As a keen young man working within the hospitality industry I have travelled the world and worked in many cities which have and promote great nightlife which is followed by safety.

Since returning to Sydney a year and a half ago from living in London, I can not believe the change in nightlife. Not just from a personal enjoyment side, but also the entire industry seems to be struggling since the bringing in of these new laws. How can you turn a blind eye to so many establishments closing the doors due to low foot traffic rates ? This is destroying the owners, workers, and further, the publics love for the city and all that it has to offer.

So many cities around the world have found other ways to tackle your so called 'alcohol fuelled violence' etc and they work extremely well, why not try them? Just like you have with these stupid lock out laws, which just push the problems elsewhere, GIVE THEM A GO!

Sydney has become an embarrassment to not only its own population, but also to the outside world. Just have a look at social media. . .

I hope things will change for the better, so we can all continue to enjoy the things we love in a safe environment.

Regards ,

P.S get a grip with capitalism and ties with the casino, why not look after the people, not just yourself.
