To whom it may concern,

I have returned back to Sydney after living 5 years in Europe and to my sadness Sydney feels more like North Korea, being told when and where we can go out and at what time I need to stop to dance & drink , even enjoy adult time at a restaurant with family and friends. I had some friend come to visit 2months ago and they stayed in Sydney 2 night out of the month and left for Melbourne they told me they love me but would never be back to Sydney and wouldn't suggest for anyone to come unless you wanted to be treated like an adolescent. I work hard and expect to be able to enjoy myself anytime of the day. I'm writing also On behalf of my fellow business owners, employers , employees, entertainers , taxi drivers everyone who has suffered this snow ball effect from the closure of Sydney. Please remove these lock out laws and let out city breath and have life. I'm disappointed to see how quiet what once was a vibrant city now is a ghost town. If you do something wrong be punished by why punish us all from some others mistakes. I am 33 years old and traveled, worked & partied all over the world and never needed a government to tell me when I can enjoy a city and when to go home.

Revive Sydney

Kind Regards
