A friend was attacked without warning by someone he did not know who was hopelessly drunk. This resulted in my friend, a teenage male, having facial damage, blurred vision and a great deal of time away from work. Why any Government would vote for more of this by winding back these simple measures would be beyond understanding. One wouldnt have to have had personal experience anyhow, but just know from others and the media that if violence erupts then most likely alcohol is the fuel! This should not be enabled by government!
