The laws work. Simple.

Don't succumb to the complaining few, who have made heaps of money out of the relaxed rules and laws that have allowed offenders to rule the streets and terrorise Sydney.

The workers that are negatively financially effected are only backpackers, the others are paramedics and police officers, emergency dept personnel, security guards and early openers who constantly deal with the ongoing negative effects.

You made a stance. Stand by it. Sydney is a better place. Still full of nightlife and amazing experiences, less the violence and trauma.

If these establishments win, make sure the onus is equally distributed between them and the patrons - so if someone can't help themself they face 10 years imprisonment and the courts make sure they can't reoffend
