We need the law changes to stand, to change back to what we previously had would be a step in the wrong direction for the communities of all cities and small towns and also a major step backwards for this government on reform. Why not let the statistics speak and base any future decision on change from them.

One life saved by the current law should be reason for the authorities to retain them, please stand up to the pressures of the suppliers of alcohol and the operators of venues with one agenda only, to increase their business revenue, ask them to find other alternatives to doing this. be strong ,do the correct thing Mr premier .

Michael Makeham
