Kings cross is a much safer and quieter place to live. Since I was at school in the suburbs many years ago Kings cross was universally seen as a lawless area where anything goes where blood on the footpath can be seen most mornings. It seems our culture and our youth can't handle the responsibility and the only one who benefits are club owners and a few late night fast food shops.

Kings cross has changed for the better don't subject this area to what has taken place for decades. There is so much more to this suburb than bars and blood.
