Kings Cross & City was a dangerous place when I was 20 and used to go out. Happy to see decrease in density. We get compared to Europe but the culture of places I have visited such as France which we get compared to have a different culture and drinking habits to our culture. I understand that some business will have been hurt but some will adapt, some die and new opportunities will rise.

With most assaults going unreported the anecdotal talk from our health sector is the most convincing for me.

Lock em out.
