Hello,
I am a former employee of 12 years at a restaurant in Potts point.
The once thriving restaurant has had a dramatic down turn in trade since the laws came into place (30% drop in year one, a further 20% drop in year two) and I was laid off last month. I expect the owner will shut it very soon with 10 people to become unemployed and another legitimate and lovely business gone. This makes me want to cry.
As a local resident I have knocked on doors all around the suburb looking for retail / restaurant work and no one is employing.
Very sad, totally unnecessary action by the government.
Take a look at what Melbourne is doing. Managing their nighttime economy proactively and not through fear.
I urge you to strongly recommend loosening of the current laws.
Kind regards
Peter
