To whom it may concern,

I write this email in the hope that a review can be done on the current lock out laws in place in Sydney. I have been living in Sydney since 2009.

With the current lock out laws in place, Sydney has lost its fantastic and vibrant nightlife and I have to say it is very disheartening to see all these venues closing down, while venues that are still opened are coming up against tougher and tougher rules and regulations. A new approach needs to be looked into as soon as possible in order for what is left of Sydney's nightlife to stay open.

I would urge you as a foreign resident to look at other major cities in the world such as Paris, London and New York and look at how they have managed to keep a vibrant and commercially viable nightlife in place whilst at the same time managing crime.

Your Sincerely

Brian O'Halloran
