To who it may concern,

It's sad to see Sydney shut down at nights all for the fact of lazy law making. Yes alcohol fuelled violence can be a problem however the vast majority of people know how to behave themselves. We should be allowed to make our own decisions on if we would like to go out in Sydney and not have laws which echo the days of prohibition.

Let's use technology to open Sydney and hold troublemakers accountable. We can do this by requiring people to provide their ID for scanning to gain entry to venues. If any person is found to cause trouble they are locked out of venues across Sydney for a certain period of time. Any person that would refuse to abide by the rules of entry typically are the troublemakers who we don't want in the venues in the first place.

For the investment to get this up and running Sydney could start to become a global city again instead of resembling a quite country town at night.
