These lockout laws have had a devastating effect on small businesses, the rate of live performance ticket sales, and the cultural life of our city.

As a supposedly 'international city', these lockout laws have made us an embarrassment, that our government treats law abiding respectful adults like children who ca't be trusted to buy a bottle of wine past 10pm.

The fact that the Casino's are exempt from these laws are a clear indication that this is not about safety or alcohol related violence, but revenue for the Government.

Its heartbreaking to see our streets empty past 11pm on a Saturday night, where they were once bustling and vibrant.

I believe all the measures of the lockouts should be lifted, or NSW and Sydney will see a large number of young people moving away to cities where they can pursue careers in live music, and entertainment that involve being out past 12pm.
