The alcohol laws need to be extended to the whole of NSW not reduced. These laws have reduced alcohol related assaults. The emergency services are all in support of the laws. There is no evidence that much good comes from Alcohol and lots of evidence harm arises regularly. Therefore why a person needs to continue drinking beyond appropriate times has no logic. There is nothing stopping people from continuing to drink at home where they can urinate and throw up in their own toilet (instead of the streets). They can beat up their own pillow instead of innocent victims. Why should everyone have to pay taxes to fund the problems of alcohol. The current laws don't stop drinking they reduce problem drinking affecting the community. People are residents of these areas they don't want their neighborhood to be an extension of the pubs and clubs. Its a joke that we could have last drinks in history at 6pm before, but now apparently 3am is too early. The pubs and clubs don't care they get the person drunk and kick them out, they have no duty of care. The people against these laws don't represent the majority of the population they seem to mainly be young. Last time I checked we have an ageing population so why should a minority of young people call the shots?
