As an eastern suburbs resident for more than 20 years, I have written letters when necessary, as well linked with local councillors, and police officers, at the time, who were seriously concerned about anti-social behaviour outside local pubs in my local precinct. Such behaviour represents a menace to our society and councils and police are to be congratulated on initiating lock-out rules. My observations since then tell me the new rules have proved highly effective in a climate of higher density inner city living, with essential workforce employees and young families trying to juggle work and child raising simultaneously in a welcoming, and safe environment. This pleads respectfully with the examiners to please maintain a policy of balanced lockout rules, while welcoming civilised and moderate consumption of alcohol.
