We live in [REDACTED] [REDACTED] close to the CBD. Before the Lockout laws were introduced we were disturbed many nights of every week by roaming visitors who had left drinking establishments and were just intent on creating disturbance and doing damage through wilful vandalism. The night life here was limited to bars which catered for the drinkers and not for civilised night entertainment.

Since the new laws were introduced life has dramatically changed - the streets are generally quiet all night, the night scene has vastly improved with many more people are around and many small bars and restaurants with civilised behaviour.
