While I live on the outskirts of Sydney, I spend my working week and sometimes weekends in the city. Recently I had to come to the office at 3am, and had to take extra care travelling via Kings Cross as there was a huge amount of people still out and about. Thankfully I didn't see crazy drunk people, probably due to the laws, and I'd like that to continue. I never felt comfortable going to the city at night before the laws due to the crazy drunk people around - please keep it safer and keep the law in place.

I believe it's your moral responsibility.

Thank you for taking the time to read my thoughts.

Regards,
