To the committee,

I propose a change to the law that would encourage venues to employ musicians - to allow exceptions from the lock out laws for venues providing live music (minimum one or more instrumentalists and/or vocalists performing music). This change would create an incentive to employ our enormously talented pool of Sydney musicians, whilst allowing for a late night experience for our Sydney folk to enjoy. As an educator within music, I think this is a great way to create a strong, flourishing live music scene that benefits both creators and audiences alike.

All the best in your lengthy submission readings.
