Hey there,

As a tourist currently travelling Australia I must say that Sydney has by far been the worst performer on the nightlife department. It doesn't compare to any of the other capital cities in the Country which as still bustling with atmosphere. I expected to see a buzzing Kings Cross that many before had told about only to find what looked like a deserted street which looked something out of an old western movie.

I will not be recommending Sydney to other travellers on my journey, not for the nightlife at least.

Best,

Adam Warren
