I live in a quiet area but near a late night hotel. Last year I was woken up around 3am by a very drunk couple arguing and abusing each other outside our house. It woke me up so I could hear what they were saying. It was very abusive and aggressive from both of them, then he switched to another alarming level. Next was a loud sound of flesh being hit, and she couldn't be heard again. I called the local police who were excellent with their response but the couple couldn't be seen. The level of drunkenness was extremely high. Furthermore anyone that should happen to encounter them on the street would have been at risk of being assaulted. We certainly would not have been able to leave our house while they were arguing at our front fence. This is not celebrating, and is not acceptable for the community who live nearby.
