I've recently moved to Sydney and before I had arrived I had no knowledge of the lock out laws. I've previously lived in London, and have travelled quite extensively and have never experienced such horrendous laws. I thought as a "global city" Sydney would have nice night life, but instead it is completely dead. Sydney is being wiped off the map of global importance. Since i've been here ive seen countless people move to Melbourne in search of better culture and nightlife.
